SNAPPED AT BY SHARK.

Everett Small Narrowly Es- caped Losing Hand.

WAS HAULING LOBSTER POTS.

Monster Leaped Out of Water and Teeth Scratched Fisherman.

Everett Small, a lobster fisherman, came very near having his hand bitten off by a shark this morning, and had a narrow escape from losing his life.

Mr. Small was hauling his pots in the vicinity of Norman's Woe, and had pulled one to the dory, when what is known as a swivel-tail shark jumped from the water directly at the occupant of the dory. The teeth of the sharp scratched one of Mr. Small's hands, but otherwise no injury was done. It was a miraculous escape for Mr. Small, for had he been leaning over the water, the shark would have without a doubt snapped of the hand.

Mr. Small is very thankful that he escaped as he did, and he is not particular about repeating the incident.

Mediterranean Mackerel.

Some interesting specimens of dried mackerel caught in the Mediterranean were received this week from Smyrna by a New York house, but it would not appear that they can ever compete with the North Atlantic mackerel as a food fish. They are only about six inches long, with large heads, but might do to can in good shape.
